LARGE CROWD TO BE HERE SUNDAY

Encampment will Draw Many Thousands of Visitors to Gettysburg on Sunday. Religious Services and Regimental Review.

Sunday will be a busy day at Camp Edwin S. Stuart with thousands of visitors who are expected from Central and Eastern Pennsylvania. A dozen special trains are hooked to bring the crowds here and Gettysburg will have the largest number of visitors for a "Guard Sunday" in some years.

In addition to the aeroplane exhibit another attraction will be provided in the review by General Dougherty at division headquarters of a full war strength regiment to be recruited from the various commands in the Third Brigade. While the ordinary National Guard regiment has only about 800 men the wartime strength is 1500 and each company has 105 enlisted men and three officers. The regiment has fifty one officers, forty of whom are mounted, a squadron of orderlies and scouts, a full wagon train, ammunition train and field wagon train. The customary "sanitary troops" will also be with the regiment. It will be recalled that two years ago this same thing was done at the maneuver camp but this is the first time in the history of the National Guard of this state that it has been attempted. It will take place at two o'clock.

Religious services will be held at many places in camp on Sunday. In the morning the First, Second, Third and Fourteenth regiments will hold services on Oak Ridge. Several addresses will be made and the four regimental bands will be present to assist in the music. Notice of the military mass to be held by Rev. Fr. Dougherty in the Third Regiment at eleven o'clock has been made in these columns. Practically all the regiment will have religious services during the day.

This morning all the troops at camp were out in two big maneuvers. The plan to have all engaged in one battle had to be abandoned on account of the small size of the maneuver area. The greatest secrecy was maintained at camp on Friday regarding arrangements for the day, even the names of the commanders being withheld and when the different armies started to "war" they had no idea of the strength of the force they were to meet.

There were a number of smaller maneuvers on Friday in one of which two regiments were given the task of protecting Gettysburg while two others tried to take the town. Citizens will be glad to know that the town was saved. Evening parade was held at a number of regiments.

EAST BERLIN

East Berlin, July 27—Mr. Swartz, a Sunday School worker, held an interesting meeting in the Sunday School room of the Reformed church, at the close of which an opportunity was given to make any inquiry into the work desired.

On Tuesday, while Charles Miller, near town, was cutting his timothy seed, his horses got frightened and ran away, doing considerable damage to the binder. Mr. Miller's twelve year old son was riding the horses, while Mr. Miller was on the machine. Fortunately neither was hurt very seriously.

Esther and Winifred Glatfelter are spending a two weeks' vacation at Atlantic City.

P. C. Smith left Tuesday evening for a visit among friends in Ohio, Illinois, Kansas and other points in the middle west.

Mrs. David Miller is spending some time at Blairsville, N. J., where she attended the wedding of her brother, Prof. Curtis E. Cook.

George Baublitz and son, Orville and A. A. Gruver and son, Elmer, made a business trip to Gettysburg in Mr. Baublitz's auto.

Mrs. Hortense Sterner and daughter, Catharine and sister, Marie, are spending some time at Three Bridges, N. J., visiting their sister, Mrs. Clara Smith.

Denton Myers lost his pocketbook containing about $150 and some checks one day this week.

TO SING AT CAMP

The Chautauqua Chorus will sing at the Fourth Brigade camp at a service to be held at 8 o'clock this evening by Rev. J. B. Baker. The members of the chorus are requested to meet in Centre Square not later than 7.45 to take a car which will be provided.

CONCERT IN SQUARE

The Fourteenth Regiment band gave an enjoyable concert in the Square on Friday evening. Local liverymen furnished teams to convey the musicians from camp to town.

THE Ladies' Aid society of Orangetown will hold a festival Saturday, August 17, for the benefit of the church.

CHAUTAUQUA AND THE ASSEMBLY

Programs for the First Sessions. Mistaken Idea Concerning Tickets. Robert Downing to Make Three Addresses.

The Gettysburg Chautauqua opens this evening at 7.30 in the big tent on Prep campus. There will be opening exercises and the lecture of the evening will be on "The Dawn of Plenty" by L. R. Houghton. It will be illustrated with still and motion pictures.

On Sunday morning at half past nine the union Sunday School service will be conducted by Rev. Prof. C. F. Sanders. The union church service will be at 10.30 and the sermon will be preached by Dr. J. M. Francis, of Sunbury. The afternoon session at two o'clock will have as its principal feature a lecture on Robert L. Downing, the reformed actor, on "Why I Became a Christian." Union Christian Endeavor at 8 o'clock will be led by Rev. J. B. Baker and at 7.30 a song service will be given by the Chautauqua Chorus. At 8 o'clock Mr. Downing will give his lecture on "From the Stage to the Pulpit."

Monday at 2 o'clock there will be a recital by Miss Jeanette Bromell, reader, and at 2.30 a lecture recital "The Gladiator" by Mr. Downing.

The program for the Monday morning meeting of the Lutheran Summer Assembly which will hold its meetings in the Chautauqua tent is as follows:

8.45 a. m. Devotional Study: "The Sufferings of Christ and their Design." Rev. U. A. Hankey, New Kensington.

9.15 a. m. Biblical Study: "Studies in Ephesians and Philippians." (1) "The Calling of the Church," Rev. C. P. Wiles, Washington, D. C.

10.00 a. m. Conference Hour. (a) Brotherhoods and Missions—led by Rev. W. F. Baer, of York. (1) "Value of Brotherhoods and Mission Study." (b) Young People's and Boys' Work—led by Rev. J. B. Baker, Gettysburg. (c) "Young People's Society Work." (d) Woman's Missionary Work—led by Miss Sallie M. Protzman, Baltimore, Md. "Paths to Success." Path I. "Ourselves."

11.15 a. m. Historical Lecture: "The Origin of the Pennsylvania Germans." Rev. Prof. A. R. Wentz, Gettysburg.

It has come to the notice of the Chautauqua Board of Directors that there is a mistaken impression in regard to the use of Chautauqua course tickets, namely that a ticket is transferable but that only the person presenting same will be admitted thereon. The Board wishes to explain that these course tickets are good for twenty admissions and the owners may, for instance, take 19 others with him to one session, thereby using the entire ticket.

GROUND HOG ROAST

Messrs. John Graul and A. A. Smith, of Mt. Rock, recently in one week's time succeeded in shooting eight ground hogs on the old Bender farm adjoining the town. The largest of the hogs weighed 14 1/2 pounds and the smallest 4 1/2 pounds. A ground "hog" feast was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jacoby one evening when several of the hogs were stuffed with onions and roasted, making a very palatable meal, which was greatly enjoyed by the large number of participants.

SAMUEL G. PERRY

After an illness of one week, Samuel G. Perry died at his family residence in York Wednesday morning at 5.40 o'clock. He was 65 years old and is survived by his wife and five children: Carl L. Perry, Samuel H. Perry, York; N. H. Perry, Massachusetts; Mrs. Frank Daugherty, Pittsburgh; and Marguerite Perry at home.

Mr. Perry was a native of Chambersburg, and a printer. He worked at the trade in Gettysburg and York, after which he engaged in other pursuits in the latter place.

SCOUTS TO CAMP AT ISLAND GROVE

Boiling Springs Resort will See Gettysburg Boy Scouts under Canvas. All Arrangements Made for Annual Outing.

After several weeks of search, the Boy Scouts have located a camping ground, and according to previous arrangements they will leave for Island Grove Park, Boiling Springs, early Monday morning, August 5th. The spot is almost ideal for such a camp, as the boys wish to have, as there is plenty of water for drinking and cooking purposes as well as good boating and swimming. Then there is the rough mountain side for wood craft, etc.

The boys will load their tents and other baggage at the Philadelphia and Reading freight station early Friday morning and the goods will be forwarded to its destination where it will be met on Saturday morning by a detail of Scouts who will prepare camp at least in part.

Contrary to previous years, each Scout will deposit $5.00 with the camp master and the food stuffs will be purchased in large quantities and the boys will accordingly be fed alike. "Shorty" Miller will be chief cook and will be aided in his work by the different patrols from day to day. John Sachs will act as camp master of athletics while Jack Tawney, the popular drill master of the boys, will be on hand, it is hoped, at his old post.

A late ruling from national headquarters states that mothers should be careful in what they send their boys as an abundance of cakes and candy is the ruination of many camps, so in order that the boys may be kept healthy, this rule will be enforced as far as possible.

The idea of having the Scouts from several towns camp together had to be abandoned owing to the apparent impossibility of securing a camp site.

THAW GOES BACK TO ASYLUM

Court Orders White's Slayer
Returned There.

FINDS HE IS STILL INSANE

Justice Keogh, of the New York Supreme Court, Says it Would Be Dangerous to Set Him Free.

White Plains, N. Y., July 27.—Harry K. Thaw, in the eyes of the law, is still insane and must remain in the asylum where he was placed on Feb. 1, 1908, after he had killed Stanford White.

Justice Martin J. Keogh, of the supreme court, denied Thaw's application for freedom. The court took the ground that Thaw's release would be dangerous to the public peace and safety.

The proceedings lasted for several weeks, and among the witnesses was Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, wife of the prisoner.

The decision of Justice Keogh denying liberty to Thaw in his third effort to escape from the madhouse was brief. It held that the applicant had not proved his sanity. Justice Keogh said: "My whole duty is fully performed when I decide the single question presented for decision, namely: 'Is Harry K. Thaw at present sane or insane, and would his release be dangerous to the public peace and safety?' Having listened to all the testimony and seriously considered it, I am of the opinion that Harry K. Thaw is still insane and that his discharge would be dangerous to the public peace and safety. The writ, therefore, must be dismissed on the merits and Harry K. Thaw be delivered to the authorities at Matteawan."

The contention of his counsel was that Thaw was suffering from insane delusions when he killed White, but that the insanity was temporary only.

Thaw procured a copy of the decision and read it with seeming indifference. "It is as I thought," he said. "I am sending the sad word to my family. It would have been better had I been acquitted like Captain Hains." A little later Thaw went to the jail office, where he telephoned to his sister, the former Countess of Yarmouth, who is staying in Westbury, L. I.

Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, the aged mother of the prisoner, who has been staying at the Carlyon Arms hotel since the hearing on Thaw's mental condition began on June 17, was much disappointed at the outcome. While she refused to be interviewed, it was said by those interested that she felt a great injustice had been done her and her son, in whom she has never lost faith.

The result of Thaw's latest fight for liberty comes after the expenditure by his family of probably a million dollars in the process of habeas corpus proceedings. His mother has appealed from every adverse decision, going in one case to the United States supreme court.

Thaw has changed unsuccessful lawyers for others; he has fought on every technical ground that his highly paid lawyers have been able to conceive, and has stirred the state's administrative departments with charges against those in charge of the Matteawan asylum.

The Thaw jury on April 12, 1907, failed to agree on a conviction of Thaw for the murder of Stanford White. The second homicide trial ended Jan. 30, 1908, having occupied two months less time than the first. Martin W. Littleton spoke the closing words to the jury, tracing the alleged insanity of Thaw from his early childhood to his early manhood up to the time that he shot White. Insanity was the one defense.

200 FALL INTO RAVINE

Were Listening to Lecture at Masonic Picnic When Platform Broke.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 27.—Two hundred Masons attending a Masonic picnic, and their families, seated on a wooden platform covering a twenty-five-foot ravine, in front of the open air theater at Wheeling park, were mangled and badly injured when the platform broke in the center and they were violently thrown and crushed into the bottom of the V-shaped breach at the bottom of the ravine.

Doctors were rushed to the scene of the accident and the injured were hauled out by rescue parties with ropes and placed in the pavilion. Every person crowded on the platform listening to the lecture and speeches, from the stage went to the bottom. All were injured more or less. Numerous persons suffered broken bones, serious body injuries, cuts and gashes. Many received injuries of a serious nature, although no one was killed outright in the crash.

ARREST COUNCILMEN FOR BRIBERY

Warrants Issued in Detroit
For Eleven.

Detroit, Mich., July 27.—Warrants were issued for the arrest of eleven members of the common council of the city of Detroit, and charges of accepting bribes for their votes and influence in passing of a measure affecting city property recently transferred to a railroad preferred. It is alleged that $37,000 passed in bribes.

Thomas Glinnan, president of common council, and E. R. Schreiter, secretary of council committees, and also secretary of the American League of Municipalities, were arrested, and other arrests are expected soon.

It is said that Glinnan accepted $1,000 and Schreiter received $500. Eleven other aldermen are also alleged to have received money for the same purpose.

The bribery was consummated and the arrests accomplished through a detective agency working under the direction of a private citizen, Andrew H. Green, general manager of a large Detroit manufacturing plant. The detectives say they caught their men not only with marked money, but by dictagraph testimony and phonograph records. It is alleged that $37,000 was passed, split in sums of from $100 to $1,000.

The alleged graft was in connection with the application of the Wabash railroad for the closing of a street. The road wanted to build a warehouse and increase its shipping facilities. The application was held up in the council. Then suddenly the council, by a vote of several of the members who had previously held out against the closing of the street, granted the railroad the desired permission.

LITTLE HOPE FOR MIKADO

Condition of Japan's Ruler Extremely Grave.

Tokio, July 27.—Suspense in the capital has been intense since the regular bulletin showed that the condition of Mutsuhito, the Japanese emperor, had become worse.

It is plainly evident that his majesty's condition is extremely grave and that the physicians are doing their utmost to sustain the remaining feeble spark of life.

The great park outside the entrances to the palace grounds presented a remarkable scene. Thousands of people were gathered under the dwarf pine trees, many praying and all showing sorrowful anxiety.

Among the upper branches of the magnificent pine trees surrounding the palace, high above the outer park, a number of paper lanterns, showing recognition of the homage of the multitude, occasionally swung as if showing that the vital spark still lingered and conveying a message of hope to the people.

The condition of the emperor is regarded by those in immediate attendance as extremely grave. The nature of his majesty's malady, which is indicated as acute nephritis, complicated by uraemic poisoning, and which began to cause serious alarm about July 19, has prevented the imperial patient taking sufficient nourishment, and he has continually become weaker.

SENATE PASSES EXCISE BILL

Goes Through by a Vote of 37 to 18.

REPEALS RECIPROCITY ACT

The Bill as Passed Provides For a Tax on All Individual and Copartnership Incomes in Excess of $5000.

Washington, July 27.—The senate, by a vote of 37 to 18, passed the house excise tax bill, which would extend the corporation tax law to individuals and copartnerships on incomes in excess of $5000.

The bill as passed included a provision for the repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act and a substitution of a $2 per ton rate on print paper.

Senator Borah's income tax bill was defeated.

Senator Smith, of Georgia, making the opening speech for the bill, said he favored an income tax, but could not agree to substitute an income tax bill for the measure the house had passed. Senator Borah, who had introduced an income bill, asked for its reading.

Earlier in the day Democratic senators in caucus determined to support the house excise bill and to reject the Borah income tax bill offered as an amendment. There was some opposition to this course.

The caucus passed a resolution saying that while favoring an income tax, they realized that with the pending amendment to the constitution authorizing such a tax, now requiring the favorable vote of only two more states, it was preferable to support the bill for an excise tax, which, with the existing corporation tax, would raise approximately an equivalent amount of revenue.

The income tax had many supporters among Democrats, who did not wish to be compelled to vote against a principle they endorsed. In the hope, however, that the Progressives could again be held in line and the excise bill passed, it was decided to vote against any amendments to the measure.

The caucus indorsed in general terms a sugar bill, which Senator Williams later presented to the senate as a substitute. It would make a reduction of 33 1/2 per cent on refined and unrefined sugar; a reduction of 40 per cent on molasses and abolish the Dutch standard test and the differentials in duty now existing.

Little sentiment was shown in caucus in favor of free sugar. The leaders urged that such a proposal would not be acceptable to western states having bet sugar industries and agreed that the reductions proposed in the Williams substitute meet the views of Democrats in the senate.

Democratic leaders believe they will be able, with the aid of the Progressives, to pass a compromise sugar tariff bill, probably that by Senator Bristow, taking at least 40 or 50 cents per hundred pounds off the present duty of $1.50 on sugar.

Republican leaders were puzzled to estimate how far the new alliance between the Democrats and Progressives would go in the action on the other tariff bills.

WILSON ATTACKED IN HOUSE

Representative Rodenberg, of Illinois, Raps Democratic Nominee's Views.

Washington, July 26.—Representative Rodenberg, Republican, of Illinois, made a political speech in the house attacking Governor Wilson, of New Jersey.

Mr. Rodenberg quoted long extracts from Wilson's "History of the American People," in which the writer referred to Thomas Jefferson as "an aristocrat who deliberately practiced the arts of a politician," and said that "Washington found him a guide who needed watching."

Governor Wilson's writings on the immigration question Mr. Rodenberg reviewed at length. He quoted Wilson's praise of the Chinese and declared "that there must have been rejoicing in every Chinese laundry in the United States" when the governor was nominated for president at Baltimore.

Governor Wilson's views of William Jennings Bryan, as expressed in the much-talked-of "Joline Letter," and his references to Mr. Bryan's participation in the Democratic convention of 1906, Mr. Rodenberg reviewed at length.

$20,000 More to Fight Army Worm.

Washington, July 27.—The senate came to the rescue of southern farmers by passing a resolution appropriating immediately $20,000 to check the ravages of the army worm. This was supplemental to the appropriation of $5000 already voted.

Here's Why It's "Baby Blue."

Washington, July 27.—"The color white, which is all colors in one, is in vogue to babies," said Dr. L. S. Anderson. "Nurseries should be papered in dark colors. Blue is best of all."

The People's and Huber's Drug Store Desires to announce that they are the Agents for Thompson's Barossa, the Money-Back Kidney and Liver Cure.

There are hundreds of people, young and old, right here in Gettysburg who are taking medicines for various ailments, who do not even suspect that the kidneys are to blame.

These sufferers do not know that in and probability their kidneys are all clogged up, are inflamed or constricted, and are unable to properly filter the impurities from the blood.

It is the kidneys that keep the blood pure, and if the kidneys are not in good condition, disease or other organs of the body will surely develop.

Thompson's Barossa will cure any disease of the kidneys, or the People's and Huber's Drug Store will give you your money back.

If you are in ill health now, and are not absolutely certain of the cause, get a 50-cent bottle of Thompson's Barossa at The People's and Huber's Drug Store today. It will make you feel better in a day. It will tone up your kidneys, liver and bladder in a week.

It is the best investment you can make. It is worthy of a trial on our guaranteed plan. Ask for Thompson's Barossa. The dollar bottle contains more than twice as much as the fifty-cent size.

TAFT MAY VETO THE WOOL BILL

Think He Will Take Action Same as Last Year.

FIGHT ON THE CONFEREES

Progressives Threaten to Carry Contest to Floor of Senate Unless They Are Given Representation.

Washington, July 27.—At the White House some of President Taft's callers predicted that he would veto the wool bill if it came to him in the form it left the senate.

The LaFollette bill, as passed, is substantially the same as was vetoed last year by the president. The former bill was vetoed on the ground that the tariff board had not reported on its investigation of schedule "K." Leaders of both houses say the LaFollette bill follows the conclusions of the board quite closely.

A hard fight between the regular Republican forces and the Democratic-Progressive combination over control of the senate conferees was indicated.

Friends of the LaFollette bill insist that senators favorable to that measure be named as conferees. It is understood, however, that Republican leaders contemplate the naming of Senators Penrose and Lodge, Republicans, and Senator Simmons, Democrat. In case this action is attempted Senator LaFollette and other Progressives declare they will carry the fight from the finance committee to the floor of the senate, in an effort to secure a conference committee favorable to the LaFollette bill.

It will depend largely upon the character of the conference committee named by the senate whether a compromise similar to last year's will be quickly effected. Last year Republican leaders refused to have anything further to do with the bill after it passed, and the senate named Senator LaFollette, Republican, and Senators Bailey and Simmons, Democrats, as the conferees to act with Representatives Underwood, Randall and Harrison.

When the LaFollette bill reached the house Majority Leader Underwood demanded that it be sent to conference and the senate amendment disagreed to. Representative Payne, of New York, objected to the bill going to conference before it had been referred to the ways and means committee.

The essential points of the LaFollette bill and the house bill are as follows:

Raw wool—LaFollette bill, 10 to 25 per cent; house bill, 20 per cent.

Wool wastes and rags—LaFollette 25 to 30 per cent; house, 20 per cent.

Combed wool or tops—LaFollette, 4 per cent; house, 25 per cent.

Yarns—LaFollette, 45 per cent; house, 30 per cent.

Cloths, ready-made clothing, knit fabrics, women's dress goods, etc., LaFollette, 55 per cent; house, 35 to 50 per cent.

Carpets—LaFollette, 35 per cent; house, 25 to 50 per cent.

When the house and senate conferees reached a compromise a year ago the raw wool duty was compromised at 20 per cent, the wool waste duty at 25 per cent, the yarn duty at 35 per cent, the ready-made clothing duty at 40 per cent.

Chairman Underwood also sees a chance for the cotton revision at this session of congress.

"I am going to call the ways and means committee to consider the advisability of calling up our cotton bill," he said. "Now that the senate has shown some disposition to enact some legislation giving the people tariff relief, we might as well take up cotton."

DEMOCRAT BOLTS DECISION OF CAUCUS

Sulzer Says 25 or 30 Will Vote For One Battleship.

Washington, July 27.—Representative Sulzer, Democrat, of New York, who is chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs, has written to Representative Burleson, chairman of the house Democratic caucus, declaring his intention to vote for a battleship program, regardless of the caucus, which declared for no ships this year.

"I have told Mr. Burleson that when ever my vote is directed by constitutional and patriotic motives I will not be bound by a scant majority in the caucus," said Mr. Sulzer. He declared twenty-five or thirty Democrats, who participated in the caucus, were ready to vote for one or more battleships.

"If enough Republicans support the senate program we can pass it through the house," said Mr. Sulzer. He now is circulating a petition for another caucus.

The senate agreed to part of the conference report on the naval bill but insisted upon its amendments for two battleships and eight submarine torpedo boats. These provisions were sent back to further conference.

A serious split in the Democratic organization of the house of representatives also is threatened as a result of the action of the caucus in declaring against additions to the battleship fleet.

"I hope you won't be alarmed," continued the voice, broken by panting pauses, as if the speaker was struggling into a garment. "I know this must seem strange. You see, I came on the coach as far as Bayport and then we lost a wheel in a rut. There was a—oh, dear! where is that—this is supremely idiotic—I was saying there happened to be a man coming this way with a buggy and he offered to help me along. He was on his way to Wellmouth. So I left my trunk to come later and took my valise. It rained on the way and I was wet through. I stopped at Captain Daniels' house and the girl said he had gone with his daughter to the next town, but that they were to stop here at the parsonage on their way. So—there! that's right, at last!—so I came, hoping to find them. The door was open and I came in. The captain and his daughter were not here, but, as I was pretty wet, I thought I would seize the opportunity to change my clothes. I had some dry—er—things in my valise and I—well, then you came, you see, and I assure you I—well, it was the most embarrassing—I'm coming now."

The door opened. The two in the sitting room huddled close together, Keziah holding the broom like a battle-axe, ready for whatsoever might develop. From the dimness of the tightly shuttered study stepped the owner of the voice, a stranger, a young man, his hair rumpled, his tie disarranged, and the buttons of his waistcoat filling the wrong buttonholes. Despite this evidence of the hasty toilet in semidarkness, he was not unprepossessing. Incidentally, he was blushing furiously.

"I didn't speak," he said, "because you took me by surprise and I wasn't, as I explained—er—presentable. Besides, I was afraid of frightening you. I assure you I hurried as fast as I could, quietly, and when you began to talk—his expression changed and there was a twitch at the corner of his mouth—I tried to hurry still faster, hoping you might not hear me and I could make my appearance—or my escape—sooner. As for entering the house—well, I considered it, in a way, my house; at least, I knew I should live in it for a time, and—"

"Live in it?" repeated Keziah. "Live in it? Why? mercy on us! you don't mean to say you're—"

She stopped to look at Grace. That young lady was looking at her with an expression which, as it expressed so very much, is beyond ordinary powers of description.

"My name is Ellery," said the stranger. "I am the minister—the new minister of the Regular society."

Then even Keziah blushed.

CHAPTER III.

In Which Keziah Assumes a Guardian-ship.

Grace left the parsonage soon after the supposed tramp disclosed his identity. Her farewells were hurried and she firmly refused Mrs. Coffin's not too-insistent appeal to return to the house "up street" and have supper. She said she was glad to meet Mr. Ellery. The young minister affirmed his delight in meeting her. Then she disappeared in the misty twilight and John Ellery surreptitiously wiped his perspiring forehead with his cuff, having in his late desire for the primal necessities forgotten such a trifling incident as a handkerchief. The minister smiled rather one-sidedly.

"It's been something of a day for me," he said. "I am ahead of time and I've made a lot of trouble, I'm afraid. But yesterday afternoon I was ready and, to tell the truth, I was eager to come and see my new home and get at my work. So I started on the morning train. Then the stage broke down and I began to think I was stranded at Bayport. But this kind-hearted chap from Wellmouth—I believe that's where he lived—happened to pull up to watch us wrestling with the smashed wheel, and when he found I was in a hurry to get to Trumet, offered to give me a lift. His name was—was Bird. No, that wasn't it, but it was something like Bird, or some kind of a bird."

"Bird?" repeated Keziah thoughtfully. "There's no Birds that I know of in Wellmouth. Hum! Hey? 'Twa'n't Sparrow, was it?"

"That was it—'Sparrow.' 'Good land! Emulous Sparrow. Run considerable to whiskers and tongue, didn't he?"

"Why, yes; he did wear a beard. As for tongue—well, he was conversational, if that's what you mean."

"That's what I mean. If you rode twelve miles with Emulous, you must have had an earache for the last six. Did he ask a question or two about your personal affairs, here and there between times?"

Mr. Ellery laughed.

"Yes, one or two, between times," he admitted.

"I shan't die of surprise. Did you tell him who you was?"

"No-o, he was honest, I didn't. He was so very anxious to find out, that—well, I dodged. I think he believed I was going to visit Captain Daniels. Still, some one may have seen me come here."

"No, no, they didn't. This fog is as thick as injun-meal puddin'. Nobody saw you."

"Well," with some hesitation, "the young lady who was here with you—"

"Oh, Grace Van Horne! She's all right. She won't tell. She ain't that kind."

"Van Horne? That doesn't sound like a New England name."

"Tisn't. Her folks come from Jersey somewheres. But she was adopted by old Cap'n Hammond, who keeps the tavern down on the bay shore by the packet wharf, and she's lived in Trumet since she was six years old. Her father was Teunis Van Horne, and he was mate on Cap'n Eben's coastin' schooner and was drowned off Hatteras. Eben was saved just by the skin of his teeth and got a broken hip and religion while it happened. His hip's better except that he's some lame; but his religion's been more and more feverish ever since. He's one of the head Come-Outers, and built their chapel with his own money. You mustn't think I'm speakin' lightly of religion, nor of Cap'n Eben, either. He's a dear good soul as ever was, but he is the narrowest kind of Come-Outers. His creed is just about as wide as the chapel door, and that's as narrow as the way leadin' to salvation; it is the way, too, so the Come-Outers think."

"What are Come-Outers? Some new sect?"

"Sakes alive! Haven't you heard of Come-Outers? Cat's foot! Well, you'll hear of 'em often enough from now on. They're folks who used to go to our church, the Regular, but left because the services was too worldly, with organs and choir singin', and the road to paradise too easy. No need for me to tell you any more. You'll learn."

Mr. Ellery was interested. He had been in Trumet but once before, on the occasion when he preached his trial sermon, and of that memorable visit remembered little except the sermon itself, the pews filled with captains and their families, and the awe-inspiring personality of Captain Elkanah Daniels, who had been his host. To a young man, the link upon his diploma from the theological school still fresh, a trial sermon is a weighty matter, and the preaching of it weightier still. He had rehearsed it over and over in private, had delivered it almost through clenched teeth, and had returned to his room in the Boston boarding house with the conviction that it was an utter failure. Captain Elkanah and the gracious Miss Annabel, his daughter, had been kind enough to express gratification, and their praise alone saved him from despair. Then, to his amazement, the call had come. Of casual conversation at the church and about the Daniels table he could recall nothing. So there was another religious organization in town and that made up of seceders from his own church. He was surprised.

"Er—this Miss Van Horne?" he asked. "Is she a—Come-Outers?"

Mrs. Coffin nodded.

"Yes," she said. "She's one Couldn't be anything else and live with her Uncle Eben, as she calls him."

"Has Captain Hammond no children of his own?" he asked.

Keziah's answer was short for her. "Yes," she said. "One."

"Ah! another daughter?"

"No, a son. Name's Nathaniel, and he's a sea captain. He's on his way from Surinam to New York now. They expect him to make port most any time, I believe. Now, Mr. Ellery, I s'pose we've got to arrange for your supper and stayin' overnight; and with this house the way 'tis and all, I don't see—"

"I guess," she said, "that the best thing for you to do will be to go to Cap'n Elkanah's. They'll be real glad to see you. I know, and you'll be in time for supper, for Elkanah and Annabel have been to Denbro and they'll be late home. They can keep you overnight, too, for it's a big house with lots of rooms. Then, after breakfast to-morrow you come right here. I'll have things somewhere near ship-shape by then, I guess, though the cleanliness I have to be mainly a lick and a promise until I can really get at it. Your trunk'll be here on the coach, I s'pose, and that'll be through early in the afternoon. Get on your hat and coat and I'll go with you to Elkanah's."

The young man demurred a little at thrusting himself upon the hospitality of the Daniels' home, but Keziah assured him that his unexpected coming would cause no trouble. So he entered the now dark study and came out wearing his coat and carrying his hat and valise in his hand.

"I'm sure I'm ever so much obliged to you," he said. "And, as we are going to be more or less together—or at least I guess as much from what you say—would you mind if I suggest a mutual introduction. I'm John Ellery; you know that already. And you—"

Keziah stopped short on her way to the door.

"Well, I declare!" she exclaimed. "If that ain't the very worst! Fact is, you dropped in so ahead of time and in such a irregular sort of way, that I never once thought of introducin' anybody; and I'm sure Grace didn't. I'm Keziah Coffin, and Cap'n Elkanah and I signed articles, so to speak, this mornin', and I'm goin' to keep house for you."

She explained the reason upsetting

the former arrangement by which Lurania Phelps was to have had the position.

At the Daniels' door Keziah turned her new charge over to Matilda Snow, the hired girl. It was an indication of the family's social position that they kept "hired help." This was unusual in Trumet in those days, even among the well to do.

"Good night," said the young man, extending his hand. "Good night, Miss—or is it Mrs.—Coffin?"

"Mrs. Good night."

"She's a widow," explained Matilda. "Husband died 'fore she come back here to live. Guess he didn't amount to much; she never mentions his name."

Keziah, in the midst of her labors, found time to coach her employer and companion in Trumet ways, and particularly in the ways which Trumet expected its clergymen to travel. On the morning following his first night in the parsonage, he expressed himself as feeling the need of exercise. He thought he should take a walk.

"Well," said his housekeeper from her station opposite him at the breakfast table, "if I was you I wouldn't take too long a one. You'd better be back here by ten, anyhow. Where was you thinkin' of goin'?"

Mr. Ellery had no particular destination in mind. He would like to see something of the village and, perhaps, if she could give him the names of a few of his parishioners, he might make a few calls. Keziah shook her head.

"Gracious goodness!" she exclaimed. "I wouldn't advise you to do that. You ain't been here long enough to make forenoon calls. If you should catch some of the women in this town with aprons and calico on, they'd never forgive you in this world. Wait till afternoon; they'll be expectin' you then and they'll be rigged out in their best bibs and tuckers. S'pose you found Annabel Daniels with her hair done up in curl papers; what do you think would happen? Mornin's are no time for ministers' calls. Even old Mr. Langley never made calls in the forenoon—and he'd been here thirty odd years."

"All right, you know best. Much obliged for the advice. Then I'll simply take my walk and leave the calls until later."

"I'd be back by ten, though. Folks'll begin callin' on you by that time."

When, promptly at ten o'clock, the minister returned from his walk, he found Mrs. Rogers waiting in the sitting room. It is a prime qualification of an alert reporter to be first on the scene of sensation. Didama was seldom beaten. Mr. Ellery's catechism began. Before it was over Keziah opened the door to admit Miss Pepper and her brother. "Kyan" was nervous and embarrassed in the housekeeper's presence. Lavinia was a glacial, moving majestically and freezing as it moved. Keziah, however, was not even touched by the frost; she greeted the pair cordially, and begged them to "take off their things."

It was dinner time before the catechizers departed. The catechized came to the table with an impaired appetite. He looked troubled.

"Don't let it worry you, Mr. Ellery," observed Keziah calmly. "I think I can satisfy you. Honest and true, I ain't half as bad as you might think."

The minister looked more troubled than before; also surprised.

"Why, Mrs. Coffin!" he cried. "Could you hear—"

"Man alive! I'm not worried. Why should you be? We were talkin' about trust just now—or I was. Well, you and I'll have to take each other on trust for a while, until we see whether we're goin' to suit. If you see anything that I'm goin' wrong in, I wish you'd tell me. And I'll do the same by you, if that's agreeable. You'll hear a lot of things said about me, but if they're very bad I give you my word they ain't true. And, to be real frank, I'll probably hear some about you, which I'll take for what they're worth and considerin' who said 'em. That's a good, wholesome agreement, I think, for both of us. What do you think?"

John Ellery said, with emphasis that he thought well of it. He began to realize that this woman, with her blunt common sense, was likely to be a pilot worth having in the difficult waters which he must navigate as skipper of the Regular church in Trumet. Also, he began to realize that, as such a skipper, he was most inexperienced. And Captain Daniels had spoken highly—condescendingly but highly—of his housekeeper's qualifications and personality. So the agreement was ratified, with relief on his part.

The first Sunday came and with it the first sermon. He read that sermon to Keziah on Saturday evening and she approved of it as a whole, though she criticised some of its details.

The service began at eleven o'clock. Outside the spring breeze stirred the budding silverleaves, the distant breakers grumbled, the crows in the pines near Captain Eben Hammond's tavern cawed ribald answers to the screaming gulls perched along the top of the breakwater. And seated on one of the hard benches of the little Come-Outers chapel, Grace Van Horne heard her "Uncle Eben," who, as usual, was conducting the meeting, speak of "them who, in purple and fine linen, with organs and trumptets and vain shows, are gathered elsewhere in this community to hear a hired priest make a mock of the gospel!" (Amen!) But John Ellery, the "hired priest," knew nothing of this. He did know, however, that he was the center of interest for his own congregation, the people among whom he had been called to labor. Their praise or criticism meant everything to him; therefore he preached for dear life.

The sermon was a success.

On Monday afternoon the minister made a few calls. Keziah made out a short list for him to follow, a "sort of chart of the main channel," she called it, "with the safe ports marked and the shoals and risky places labeled dangerous."

"You see," she said, "Trumet ain't a course you can navigate with your eyes shut. We divide ourselves into about four sets—aristocrats, poor relations, town folks, and scum. The aristocrats are the big bugs like Cap'n Elkanah and the other well-off sea captains afloat and ashore. They 'most all go to the Regular church and the parish committee is steered by 'em. The poor relations are mainly widows and such, whose husbands died or were lost at sea. Most of them are Regulars. The town folks are those that stay ashore and keep store or run salt works or somethin'. And the scum work around on odd jobs or go fishin'. So, if you really want to be safe, you must call on the aristocrats first, after that on the poor relations, and so on down. You won't be bothered with scum much; they're mainly Come-Outers."

Ellery took the list from her hand and looked it over.

"Hum!" he said musingly. "Am I supposed to recognize these—er—class distinctions? But you're not seriously advising me to treat a rich man differently from a poor one?"

"Not openly different—no. But if you want to steer a perfectly safe course, one that'll keep the deep water under your keel the whole voyage, why, there's your chart."

Mr. Ellery promptly tore the "chart" into small pieces.

"I'm going out," he said. "I shall be back by supper time."

Mrs. Coffin eyed him grimly.

"Goin' to run it blindfolded, are you?" she asked.

"Yes, I am."

Her grimace disappeared and she smiled.

"I'll have your supper ready for you," she said. "Bring back a good appetite."

As a matter of fact, the minister's calls were in the nature of a compromise, although an unintentional one. He dropped in on Zebedee Mayo, owner of the big house on the slope of the hill. Captain Zeb took him up into what he called his "cupoler," the observatory on the top of the house, and showed him Trumet spread out like a map. Ellery decided that he should like Captain Zeb, although it was evident that the old whaler had decided opinions of his own which he did not hesitate to express. He judged that the Mayos were of the so-called aristocracy, but undoubtedly unique specimens. He visited four more households that afternoon. The last call was at Mrs. Thankful Payne's, and while there, listening to the wonderful "poem," he saw Miss Van Horne pass the window. He came home to a Cape Cod supper of scalloped clams, hot biscuits, and baked Indian pudding, and Keziah greeted him with a cheery smile which made him feel that it was home. His summary disposal of the "chart" had evidently raised him in his housekeeper's estimation. She did not ask a single question as to where he had been.

Next day he had a taste of Trumet's real aristocracy, the genuine article. Captain Elkanah Daniels and his daughter made their first formal call. The captain was majestic in high hat, fur-collared cape, tailed coat, and carrying a gold-headed cane. Miss Annabel wore her newest gown and bonnet and rustled as she walked. They entered the sitting room and the lady glanced superciliously about the apartment.

"Hum—ha!" barked Captain Elkanah. "Ahem! Mr. Ellery, I trust you're being made comfortable. The parish committee are—hum—ah— anxious that you should be. Yes?"

The minister said that he was very comfortable indeed.

"It isn't what you've been used to, we know," observed Miss Annabel. "Mr. Langley, our former pastor, was a sweet old gentleman, but he was old-fashioned and his tastes were queer, especially in art. Have you noticed that fruit piece in the dining room? Isn't it too ridiculous?"

Then she changed the subject to church and parish affairs. They spoke of the sewing circle and the reading society and the Friday-evening meetings.

"The Come-Outers are so vexed with us," tittered Miss Annabel, "that they won't even hold prayer meetings on the same night as ours. They have theirs on Thursday nights and it's as good as a play to hear them shout and sing and carry on. You'll enjoy the Come-Outers, Mr. Ellery. They're a perfect delight."

And as they rose to go Captain Elkanah asked:

"Is there anything you'd like done about the parsonage, Mr. Ellery? If so, it shall be done immediately. How are you satisfied with your house-keeper?"

"Very well, indeed, Captain Daniels," was the prompt reply.

"She's a character, isn't she?" giggled Annabel. "She was born here in Trumet, but went away to New Bedford when she was young and grew up there. Her maiden name was Hall, but while she was away she married a man named Ansel Coffin. They didn't live together very long and weren't happy, I guess. I don't know whose fault it was, nobody knows much of anything about it, for that's the one thing she won't talk about. Anyhow, the Coffin man was lost at sea, and after a while she came back to keep house for her brother Solomon. She's an awful odd stick, but she's a good cook, I believe; though I'm afraid you won't get the meals people such as ourselves, who've been so much in the city, are used to."

Ellery thought of the meals at his city boarding house and shuddered. He was an orphan and had boarded for years. Incidentally, he had worked his way through college. Captain Elkanah cleared his throat.

"Keziah," he commanded. "Hum—ha! Keziah, come in here a minute."

Keziah came in response to the call, her sewing in her hand. The renovation of the parsonage had so far progressed that she could now find time for a little sewing, after the dinner dishes were done.

"Keziah," said the captain pompously, "we expect you to look out for Mr. Ellery in every respect. The parish committee expects that—yes."

"I'll try," said Mrs. Coffin shortly.

"Yes, well, that's all. You can go. We must be going, too, Mr. Ellery. Please consider our house at your disposal any time. Be neighborly—hum—ha!—be neighborly."

"Yes," purred Annabel. "Do come and see us often. Congenial society is very scarce in Trumet, for me especially. We can read together. Are you fond of Moore, Mr. Ellery? I just dote on him."

The last "hum—ha" was partially drowned by the click of the gate. Keziah closed the dining-room door.

"Mrs. Coffin," said the minister, "I shan't trouble the parish committee. Be sure of that. I'm perfectly satisfied."

Keziah sat down in the rocker and her needle moved very briskly for a moment. Then she said, without looking up:

"That's good. I own up I like to hear you say it. And I am glad there are some things I do like about this new place of mine. Because—well, because there's likely to be others that I shan't like at all."

On Friday evening the minister conducted his first prayer meeting. Before it, and afterwards, he heard a good deal concerning the Come-Outers. He learned that Captain Eben Hammond had preached against him in the chapel on Sunday. Most of his own parishioners seemed to think it a good joke.

The sun of the following Thursday morning rose behind a curtain of fog as dense as that of the day upon which Ellery arrived. A flat calm in the forenoon, the wind changed about three o'clock, and, beginning with a sharp and sudden squall from the north-west, blew hard and steady. Yet the fog still cloaked everything and refused to be blown away.

"Goin' out in this, Mr. Ellery!" exclaimed Keziah, in amazement, as the minister put on his hat and coat about seven that evening. "Sakes alive! you won't be able to see the way to the gate. It's as dark as a nigger's pocket and thicker than young ones in a poor man's family, as my father used to say. You'll be wet through. Where in the world are you bound for this night?"
